RAMP's 21st Annual Changing Attitudes Breaking Barriers Luncheon will feature keynote speaker Stevie Hopkins, Director of Awesomeness at 3E Love, the disability awareness clothing line and marketing company that he co-founded along with his sister Annie, shortly before her untimely death. When Annie created the powerful symbol, that later became the tattoo on her shoulder, little did they know it would become a phenomenon and recognized worldwide as the international symbol of acceptance. Stevie is an entrepreneur who holds two degrees from the University of Illinois. He also happens to use a wheelchair due to Spinal Muscular Atrophy which is the inspiration and driving force behind his social acceptance campaign which he says, "starts with something very basic...I love who I am, and it's okay to talk to me and get to know me. I may be different but I have something to offer this world." Stevie's mission is to teach people the 3 E's, to embrace living life no matter the obstacles and by doing so, educate society and empower those with disabilities to love life.
